As For Me and My House: A GPS for Parents of School-Age Children Written for parents who are concerned about their children's journey through today's public education system, As For Me and My House: A GPS for Parents of School-Age Children is a powerful resource that can change lives. Inspired by the Book of Joshua, As For Me and My House asks parents to take charge and become empowered to improve their children's education. No longer willing to accept second-rate outcomes, today's parents are learning that by being proactive they can get better results from teachers, administrators, and their own kids. Parental responsibility is a key issue in the delivery of education. The Biblical verse "As for me and my house we will" frames the need for parents to fulfill their roles as heads of the household. This timeless advice works for parents of any race, creed, or religious belief. A GPS concept is used to direct families into responsible behavior with suggestions of techniques for solution building in relationships with educators and administrators.
