"Can't shake the feeling...that at some point, somewhere, I have lost something of infinite value...but what?" The completion of "Linear Mathematics in Infinite Dimensions" is a personal alphaaa and omegga for me as I began writing it at age 6, and completed it after many of life's magical mystery detours and two hits of acid a month ago in may 2013. What would the 6 year old me think of the story we wrote together? I am sure he would like it. With this book complete (and a few other surprises arriving) I have a plane to catch in a few days back to Roswell, New Mexico for the next-new-way-on where I plan to finish off some other works in progress with a sensory deprivation tank and a mini cassette recorder. With nothing to lose in my life I have found the creativity gates burst open and my head exploding, not to mention the reactions to what I have been writing by friends new and old as well as their own inspiring creations. Lots of amazing things to come from these new connections and networks ...Show me yours and I'll show you mine. Jacurutu:23
