Knowing that she needed to give up her high standard of living....she never realized that the ultimate cost would be giving up her heart also...

After coming to grips with the death of her father and the financial troubles that ensued afterward, Margie had felt all but hopeless. She had hated the thought of having to live like a mere peasant for the rest of her days. But, one day, after speaking with a friend from her church, she decides to become a mail order bride, and her life changes...drastically.

Andy seems to be the answer to her prayers, but when she arrives in Denver to begin her new life with him, she soon realizes that things were not at all the way he'd described them in his letters. Will Margie be able to find happiness with a man who misrepresented himself to her? Will she see that what she signed up for and what he claimed he was were two very different things...
