When we think "e-mail," we don't always think "personal." E-mail is a modern-day communication device that has a tendency to separate, rather than draw near. Why would we ever talk face-to-face when we can communicate online? But what if we used e-mail to spread the word of God's love all around the country—maybe even the world? Barbara Rasco was an empty-nester. Her children were grown and her grandchildren were spread over four states. It was difficult for her to extend the influence of the Lord to her growing family with such distances keeping them apart ... until she turned to e-mail. Through e-mail, Rasco was able to send encouragement and instruction, wrapped in the warmth of God's blessed Word. Notes from the Nest is the collection of Rasco's inspired communications with her family and the friends who begged to be added to "the list." The stories are about human struggles and strength in times of loneliness and of joy. You will discover love, warmth, and humor within these pages, while being filled with the comforts of home and family. Most of all, you will be reminded daily: "God loves you."
