Tenacious and determined, Jessie survives malaria and cannibals in the New Guinea jungle and eventually escapes to an isolated Catholic mission. But his sanctuary is tenuous since the mission is under Japanese surveillance. Realizing escape is impossible, he settles into missionary life which becomes complicated when Stephanie, a young missionary, falls in love. She is subsequently taken hostage by the Japanese and for the following two years Jessie remains at the mission and paints a panorama of native life using raw jungle materials. When the war is finally over he finds that sweet Stephanie was executed. As he gazes out the airplane window on his long flight home, Jessie wonders what awaits him...Who awaits him?... Maria...Hallie...Anyone? The ending is powerful.
