William Caldwell, Duke of Essex, had a bright future ahead of him. As right-hand man to the newly crowned King, William was moving up the ranks and gaining more and more influence at court.

In no time, he reasoned he would be helping the King with the most important matters of state and helping to shape the Kingdom's foreign affairs.

But first, a simple enough job. While the King is away, he's entrusted William to travel to Italy and bring home his future bride. William is, at first, annoyed at being assigned so trivial a task. That is until he meets the Princess.

The attraction is undeniable, and both keenly feel the struggle between duty and desire.

And then one day, they lose the battle.

The King, now back at court and anxious to get to know his future bride, suspects something is wrong and starts to ask questions.

Now, William and Bianca must use their wits to escape charges of treason the most unfortunate consequences that come with betraying your King.
